WHEREAS, Since 1984, more than 500,000 women per year die from CVD, equal to nearly one death every minute; and

WHEREAS, Within six years after a recognized heart attack: 35 percent of women will have another heart attack, 14 percent will develop chest pain, 11 percent will have a stroke, 46 percent will be disabled with heart failure, and 6 percent will experience sudden cardiac death; and

WHEREAS, African-American and Mexican-American women have higher heart disease and stroke risk factors than White women of comparable socioeconomic status; and

WHEREAS, Most women do not realize that CVD is their greatest health threat; and

WHEREAS, In women, one out of 2.5 deaths are due to CVD and only 38 percent of women report that their doctors have discussed CVD with them when discussing their health; and

WHEREAS, Sixty-three percent of women who die suddenly from coronary heart disease had no previous symptoms of the disease; and

WHEREAS, Each year the economic burden due to CVD is estimated to be over $360 billion nationwide and the economic burden in California is estimated to be over $45 billion; and

WHEREAS, The public does not recognize the fact that each year CVD claims more lives than the next seven causes of death combined; and

WHEREAS, The American Heart Association is the largest voluntary, not-for-profit organization whose mission is to reduce disability and death from heart disease and stroke; and

WHEREAS, The American Heart Association is committed to conducting and supporting medical research that advances knowledge in the areas of prevention and treatment of CVD; and

WHEREAS, The American Heart Association strives to inform all citizens about the critical importance of tools and skills that will increase the survival rate of women from heart disease and stroke; and

WHEREAS, The American Heart Association launched the Go Red for Women initiative to help raise awareness of women and heart disease and will focus on that theme during American Heart Month in February and on National Wear Red for Women Day, Friday, February 4, 2005; now, therefore, be it
